A. Read the passage carefully and then answer the following questions. (20 marks)

The magician and the birds

A magician once passed through a forest where many birds flew from tree to tree and filled the air with songs. For a long time he sat and listened, greatly delighted by their beautiful songs, but in the end he became very jealous, for he himself could not sing. At last he felt that he must find a way of getting the voices of these singing birds. He therefore called them altogether and said: "I am sad because the gods have given you such ugly brown feathers. How happy you would be if you were brilliantly coloured with red, blue, orange and green!" And the birds agreed that it was a great pity to be so ugly.

The magician then said that by means of his magic he could give them all beautiful feathers in exchange for their voices which were, after all, of very little use to them, since nobody came into the forest to hear them. The birds thought over his words and desired very much the beauty he promised them. So they foolishly agreed to give their voices, which the magician placed all together in a large calabash. He then turned the dull brown feathers of the birds into orange, green and red, and they were very pleased.

The magician hurried away, and soon as he came to a deserted place he opened the calabash and swallowed its contents. From that day he had an extremely sweet voice, and people came from far and near to listen to his songs. But the birds were satisfied with their bright feathers too. And this is why the most beautiful birds are quite unable to sing.
